The interest of the Southsiders rests largely in the race for City Segreant. The two candidates seem to have about an equal chance of carrying the three Southside precincts. Both have numerous friends, who are exerting their efforts toward electing their candidate. In the fight for commissioner of revenue there seems to be but little interest.

The neighbors were aroused, but a search for the burglar was fruitless. He had entered the house from a side window and escaped by the same route. CHANGE OF NAME

Diocesan Convention of Virginia Votes for Retention of "Protestant Episcopal."

ADVISED BY BISHOP GIBSON

Early Morning Devotional Service, Followed by Several Busy Sessions During Day.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Charlottesville, Va., May 21 .- At Its session to-day, the one hundred and eighteenth annual council of the Diocese of Virginia disposed of the most important question to come before it. It was the pending proposition to abandon the historic name of the Protestant Episcopal Church for the name "American Catholic Church.

In his annual address, delivered at the morning session, Bishop Robert A. Gibson had earnestly advised that the resolutions to be sent to the committee should embody the historic reasons for holding in high estimation the word Protestant," and "the gratitude of the church to this word which enables us to explain its purposes "to a people hostile and suspicious."

The bishop expressed the conviction that if the church were to withdraw from its protestant attitude, the result would assuredly be a rift in the whole. This prophecy he held justified as warranted by the intimate acquaintance of churchmen with conditions around them.

At first the council desided to delay the vote, but upon the motion of Rev. J. W. Morris, D. D., of Richmond, the convention unanimously resolved "that the deputies to the general convention from this diocese be instructed to vote against any change in the name of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and for the retention of the name of the Protestant Episcopal Church on the title page

Enrly Morning. The meeting of to-day began with a beautiful early morning service of a devotional nature, held at 7:30 o'clock either in Washington or West Virginia, and to subpoen witnesses. It would consider questions of alieged peonage; interference with the mails: violation of the immigration laws; violations of the laws for the trial of accused persons; violation of the Sherman act by the coal operators and the causes that led up to the conditions existing in Paint Creek. The scope of the resolution is so broad that the committee can ask absolutely anything concerning West Virginia minters, operators or mines.

Face to Face Courtesy

OOD telephone service depends largely upon mutual courtesy. The telephone is more useful to those who talk as if face to face, for civility removes difficulties and facilitates the promptest possible

As in other intercourse, it often happens that two or more people wish to talk with the same person at the same time. Without courtesy confusion is inevitable, and the confusion is greater when the people cannot see each

The operators must be patient and polite under all circumstances, but they will do better work if they meet patience and politeness on the part of telephone users.

The Bell Telephone Service enters intimately into the social and business life of each individual. The best results come through the practice of mutual courtesy.
